TAFT USES BIG STICK ON G. O. P. BOLTERS; STANDS BY STIMSON

Riot Act Read to Republicans Planning Revolt,
After Banquet.

SPEECH CONSIDERED BID TO INSURGENTS

Conciliatory Policy Toward Those
Under Ban Suggested—Party
Labeled "Progressive."

President Taft's Words to Progressives.

No one can read the list of measures passed and proposed by the Republican party and not admit that the party is progressive in the highest degree.

The legislation is not the work of one man or of one faction. As all shared in the work, so we all must share in the satisfaction of accomplishment. It is the work of Republicans.

A party of true progress is not a party of radicalism. It is not a party of ultra-conservatism.

A progressive Republican is one who recognizes existing and concrete evils, and is in favor of practical and definite steps to eradicate them.

By JOHN SNURE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—President Taft "read the riot act" to some of the prominent Republicans here last night.

This was a part of the proceedings at the banquet of the National League of Republican Clubs that was not brought out in his speech.

He found out that certain of the foremost Republicans here are bent on bolting the nomination of Henry M. Stimson.

President Taft got hold of some of them and proceeded to tell them what was what in plain English. He counseled them in strong terms to stick by the ticket, to vote it, and, more than that, get out and work for it and see that it was elected.

It came to the ears of the President that these Republicans who are disposed to bolt Stimson are friendly enough to Stimson, but they are sore at Roosevelt because of his Osawatimie speech and are anxious to rebuke him in some fashion. They are men prominent in business here.

The President would listen to no such course of reasoning. He believes in Stimson, thinks him a man big enough to stand by himself and entitled to consideration on his own merits.

Deems Spite Absurd.
He deems it absurd that because some Republicans oppose Roosevelt and do not like his doctrines they should try to take their feelings out by punishing Stimson.

It is understood that President Taft feels Stimson is going to prove even a stronger figure than Hughes if elected governor of New York and that there is every reason both from a State and national standpoint for the election of Stimson and the Republican ticket.

While President Taft does not intend to make political speeches this fall he is going to do a lot of quiet work for Stimson. It is plain since the New York visit of the President that the greatest reliance Mr. Stimson has to expect in getting the "Old Guard" element and all Republicans here who are disaffected on account

WEATHER REPORT.

The temperature has fallen quite generally east of the upper Mississippi valley, while a general rise in temperature has occurred between the Mississippi valley and the Rocky mountains. Frost was reported this morning in Michigan.

Generally fair weather is indicated for the district lying east of the Mississippi during the next twenty-four to thirty-six hours, with the exception of showers in the western Lake region. The temperature will fall still further tonight in the North and Middle Atlantic States, and frosts will occur in exposed places in New England.

POSTPONED WEDDING MYSTIFIES SOCIETY

Captain Littlefield, U. S. N.,
Was to Have Married
Mrs. Armour.

CEREMONY PLANNED FOR LAST EVENING

Rumor Says Groom-Elect Is In Hospital With Sprained Ankle.

There is considerable mystery over the postponed wedding of Mrs. Kirkland G. Armour, widow of the Kansas City beef packer, and Capt. Charles W. Littlefield, pay director, United States Navy, stationed at the Boston Navy Yard.

The ceremony was scheduled to take place yesterday at Mrs. Armour's summer home at Magnolia, N. Y.

Mrs. Armour, however, closed up her summer home some days ago and is now at the Waldorf in New York city, and a report has it that Captain Littlefield is in a hospital in Rome, N. Y., with a sprained ankle.

At the Waldorf, Mrs. Armour, who gave a small dinner party last night, refused today to explain in any way the reason why the marriage did not take place.

The announcement of the engagement between the captain and the beef packer's widow was made in April, and in the early part of August came the report that they were to be married soon.

Mrs. Armour's husband was the son of Andrew Watson Armour, an elder brother of Philip and H. O. Armour. When he died he was reported to have left several million dollars. Mrs. Armour has two sons, one aged twenty and one seventeen.

Navy Department Hears Nothing.
Nothing is known at the Navy Department of an accident to Pay Director Charles Littlefield or of his being ill in Rome, N. Y.

"I feel sure," said Paymaster General Thomas J. Cowie, "that if anything had happened to Pay Director Littlefield, it would have been reported to me as the chief of his corps."

My understanding is that he is to be married on Tuesday night, and that he and his wife are to leave for Europe on a honeymoon trip on the following day, Wednesday.

Lieut. Comdr. W. K. Harrison, detail officer of the Bureau of Navigation, who keeps track of the movements of naval officers, also without information of an accident to Mr. Littlefield.

"Pay Director Littlefield is on waiting orders for the purpose of getting married," Commander Harrison said today, "and I have received no report of the detail desk of anything having occurred to cause a postponement of the wedding. If anything has occurred, we should probably have a report of it at once."

Customary To Report.
"It would be customary for any medical officer attending him to report any illness or accident to the department, and if Mr. Littlefield were not so badly hurt, that he could not do so, it would undoubtedly telegraph Paymaster General Cowie, his chief, of any accident."

Pay Director Littlefield, until placed on waiting orders, was in charge of the navy pay office at Boston, with the rank of captain. He was born in Massachusetts and graduated at the Naval Academy from Annapolis on September 8, 1885. He has held his present rank since December 27, 1906. He has been attached to the navy pay office, Boston, since April 20, 1907.

BRISTOL, Tenn., Oct. 2.—Charles Nicely and Samuel Harris fought a pistol duel here early this morning over a loan which Harris made Nicely and which the latter declined to pay.

Each fired six times at close range. Harris was seriously wounded while Nicely escaped unhurt.

FIGHT PISTOL DUEL OVER SMALL LOAN

Tennessee Men Fire Six
Shots Each and One
Is Wounded.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—With thousands looking on from the banks and the piers of the North river, police patrol boats today started gunning for the bodies of the sailors who were drowned last evening by the swamping of the barge of the battleship New Hampshire.

Shortly after 9 o'clock a board of inquiry was called by Admiral Vreeland on board the Louisiana, his flagship, to investigate the accident.

Designated with requests for a list of the missing men, Rear Admiral Rogers stopped long enough to make this statement to a Washington Times representative: "There will be no list of the missing giving out until after the fleet sails on Saturday next. The reason is obvious. There are probably 400 men on leave; some for forty-eight hours, some for several days. Therefore, it would be impossible for us to tell who of these 400 is lost until the men are on board or the bodies found and identified."

The investigation will be carried out entirely by the Federal authorities. The local police have been notified of this effect, and their only connection with the catastrophe will be an endeavor to find the bodies.

Not an officer on the New Hampshire would venture today to give even an estimate of the number of probable dead. Those on shore who saw the barge swamped were not so reticent, Captain Leite, who conducts a boat-house on the pier at 15th street, was

KEY TO HOME LIFE IS IN HER HANDS

Charge That Polygamy Is Better Than Present System Is Keenly Discussed.

Speakers' Positions on Moral Standards.

"The fight for a single standard of morals for men and women has begun. It will make telling progress, as women take more conspicuous part in public movements."—Charles R. Henderson, University of Chicago.

"Women themselves are to blame for the double code of morals which exists. Let them demand the same standard which men demand of women."—Dr. H. C. Sharpe, Indiana State Reformatory.

Women themselves are to blame for the double code of morals which exists. Let them demand the same standard which men demand of women."—Dr. H. C. Sharpe, Indiana State Reformatory.

Judge William H. De Lacy makes a powerful plea for a single standard at the closing session of the American Prison Association convention.

By SELENE ARMSTRONG.

"A single code of morals for both men and women? Women have only themselves to blame that a double code exists. When a woman no longer condemns in man a standard of morality which man refuses to tolerate in woman, then we shall have a single standard. Not before."

This is the answer hurled back by men in reply to the scathing arraignment of social conditions, made yesterday in the Times by Dr. Katherine B. Davis, Ph. D., of the University of Chicago, in which she stated the existence of a double code of morals for men and women is filling prisons and reformatories with women criminals, and that an open and recognized system of polygamy would be preferable to the moral rottenness of our present system.

Dr. Davis' statements have been the sensation of the sessions of the American Prison Association and International Prison Congress in Washington.

Woman Is Master.
"I should say that the matter of a single code of morals rests absolutely with woman," said Charles R. Henderson, who holds the chair of sociology at the University of Chicago.

"As Goethe has said, 'It is woman that so kindeth us upward and on.' 'How shall women take hold of the matter of establishing a single code of morals for both sexes? Why, first of all, let them be given a scientific education."

"Let them know life frankly, and without shame. And let them be morally and spiritually so sensitive to the highest ideal of civilization—one man for one woman—that they shall refuse to tolerate, much less condone, any other standard."

"The fight for the single standard of morals has begun, and its leaders are the English-speaking peoples of the world."

"A single standard of morals is best for both men and women," said Dr. H. C. Sharpe, treasurer of the board of trustees of the Indiana State Reformatory.

"The women complain of a double standard, let them remember that they are responsible for its existence. I am

HAPPY BABY KNOWS NOTHING OF TRAGEDY IN BASTON HOME

Woman.

SHOOTING A RES 'LT
OF MAN DRINKING

Quarreled on Street When Wife
Asked Husband for Money.

Chubby and laughing, with big brown eyes too infantile to understand the tragedy they have witnessed, a baby girl this morning kicked and cooed in a little house at 1077 Thirtieth street.

Her's is a life tangled in the mesh of the little tragedies of married life which culminated last night when her father, Policeman Charles G. Baston, made her an orphan with his own hand.

His home broken by the shots fired in a moment of frenzy at his wife, Catherine Baston, on the eve of their wedding anniversary, for they were married nine years ago today, Baston sits silently in his cell at the Seventh precinct.

His wife is dead—murdered by him the police say. He himself is charged with the highest of capital crimes. His fellow-officers turn from him. And in this moment, Charles G. Baston, policeman-prisoner, can find no thought for his dead wife, or for his own plight, for his only concern is for the mite of humanity who lies in his arms, and kicks her heels contentedly in the home of his brother-in-law, all unknowing the tragic beginning of her own young life.

When Baston and his wife quarreled on Thirtieth street last night, because Baston would not give up the money which his wife feared he would spend for liquor, and turning upon her fired four bullets into her head, their eighteen-month-old baby, frightened by the noise of the shots, cuddled closer to Mrs. Strignetti, its aunt, who had just stepped out on her porch, a few feet away, and cried softly, yet without understanding.

When Policeman Lipscomb placed his hand on the father's shoulder and led him away from where he sat calmly beside the wife whose life he had taken, Baston turned.

"Say, Lipscomb, let me kiss the baby before I go," he said.

At the station house, while detectives

VANNUTELLI GREETED BY FORTY THOUSAND

Catholics of Philadelphia
Give Pope's Representative
Elaborate Reception.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—More than 40,000 persons crowded six of the city's Catholic churches today to receive the papal blessing from Cardinal Vincenzo Vannutelli, who with Cardinal Logue, primate of Ireland, arrived in Philadelphia last night.

The presence of the two princes of the church in Philadelphia has aroused the cardinal and the visiting prelates as it has not been in years.

Cardinal Logue, because of his advanced age, did not take part in the tour of inspection with the rest of the visitors this morning, but remained quietly resting at St. Patrick's church.

Cardinal Vannutelli's day has been a busy one. At the cathedral in Logan square, where he is the guest of Archbishop Ryan, Cardinal Vannutelli said low mass, at which more than 5,000 assisted. The great church would not accommodate half those who wished to enter, and crowds waited on the steps and in the square for the papal delegate to give them his blessing.

Ten automobiles were lined before the cathedral at 9 o'clock to convey the cardinal and the visiting prelates about the city. With the papal delegate were Archbishop Ryan, Bishop Tredergast, Father Charles F. Ravanagh, secretary to the archbishop, and Father Jelase, secretary to Cardinal Vannutelli.

Thousands of children dressed in white and carrying flowers thronged the streets and sang in their native tongue as the papal delegate was driven through the Italian section. Thousands fell on their knees as he extended his arms and gave them the blessing of Pope Pius before the two churches.

Everywhere could be seen American flags entwined with the papal colors.

The Cardinal was deeply impressed by the religious enthusiasm his presence awakened. His strong face was aglow with approval.

More Italian children greeted the distinguished visitor at St. Paul's Parochial School at Tent, and Christian streets.

Then the party were driven rapidly to Franklin and Brown streets, where was the first American cathedral of Greek Catholics who have recognized the supremacy of the Pope. Bishop Ortinsky had charge of the dedication ceremonies, the cardinal taking no part except to confer the blessing at the conclusion.

Following dedication, Cardinal Vannutelli was driven to St. Charles Borromeo Seminary, at Overbrook, for luncheon.

Cardinal Vannutelli, after a night at the Seminary at Overbrook, will leave for New York tomorrow, accompanied by Monsignor Falconio.

ORDER LA FOLLETTE TO OPERATING TABLE

Doctors Declare Senator
Must Receive Treatment
Without Delay.

ROCHESTER, Minn., Oct. 2.—Senator Robert M. La Follette will go on the operating table Tuesday morning. This was decided by the doctors today.

Examinations have shown that an operation is necessary, despite the senator's desire to postpone it until after the campaign.

EVIDENCE SHOWN OF HARD STRUGGLE

Engineer Taken From Train and Murdered and Robbed
By Bandits.

BRISTOL, Tenn., Oct. 2.—The body of Edward M. Kelly, the Bristol engineer, who was taken from his train, robbed, and murdered at Wayne, W. Va., last week, arrived this morning, and while no details of the tragedy have been received, the dead body indicates that he had a terrible fight with the brigands.

His coat and shirt are cut into shreds and his body badly lacerated, while two pistol shots in the head were responsible for death.

SHUN POLICE FORCE AS GLAMOUR FADES

Washingtonians No Longer
Yearn for Gay Uniforms.
Men Now Needed.

Wanted—Police!
Major Richard Sylvester, superintendent of the Washington police force, today announced that there is a dearth of applications from men who have yearning to trod the beat.

He stated that he has a number of vacancies on the force and that there are no applicants.

The glamour of brass buttons and blue uniform, and the craving to trudge the hickory seems to have vanished in the past year, according to Major Sylvester, who says that time was when he was deluged with applications for positions on the police force.

The waiting list was long, and the applicants were impatient to be numbered among the "meets." "But those days are over," mourns the head of the police department.

I have a number of vacancies on the force, but have not got a solitary applicant who can measure up to the required qualifications," said Major Sylvester today. "I mean by that, men who can pass the physical and elementary examinations in order that they may maintain the desired high standard."

"However, there are some good positions open on the force for the right men, and I will be glad to hear from proper candidates."

DUBLIN'S LORD MAYOR ADMIRE OUR WOMEN

Irish City's Head Fairly Bubbling Over With Enthusiasm
Since Reaching Washington, But Is Nettled At Failure of Plans for Reception Here.

Bubbling over with protestations of eternal love for the American people, and especially those sons of the Emerald Isle who have contributed to his entertainment while in the National Capital, and expressing in no uncertain terms his regret that the big love feast that was to have been tendered him during his stay in Washington had received a crimp (cause unknown), the Hon. Michael Doyle, lord mayor of Dublin town, was found at the Willard this morning fretting and fuming because there wasn't much stirring and because his barber hadn't shown up.

Mr. Lord Mayor—that's his official title in a U. S. A.—said he must positively be at something, whether it be taking his kinks out of the English, chasing the bellboys for his luggage, or giving the waiter a monstrous tip, for, said he, "I'm a little dynamo, and when I get wound up I've got to run down."

The lord mayor wouldn't sit still a minute. He told all about why he came to America while walking around the room and playing the host to the assembled newspaper men.

This is why he came:

The Cunard steamship line has dropped Queenstown as a port of call for the westward bound ships and favors Fishguard, a Welsh port, instead. This makes a difference to Dublin in the mail service of twelve days.

FOUR MORE DEAD TAKEN FROM RUINS AT LOS ANGELES

Five Suspects, One a Known
Anarchist, Are Under Arrest.

BELIEVE EXPERTS MADE THE BOMBS

Big Labor Parade Planned for Tomorrow Has Been Abandoned.

Latest Facts Concerning
Los Angeles Explosion.

Twenty-one dead and a number still missing.

Five suspects under arrest and being "sawed."

Work of recovering the bodies begun, five being recovered so far.

Dynamite bomb with clock work attachment found under General Otis' home.

Labor leaders unite in denouncing the outrage.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 2.—Four more unidentified bodies, burned to a crisp, have just been taken from the smoking ruins of the Los Angeles Times building.

There is no method of telling how many more will be discovered.

Assistant Managing Editor Chandler today received a letter, threatening him with death if he did not accede to certain demands.

The excitement is at fever heat, and the Sunday crowds are thronging the streets leading to the ruined building.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 2.—Five suspects are under arrest and the police today expect to force from one of them a confession that will explain the deep mystery of the destruction of the Los Angeles Times building, in which nearly a score of lives were lost, and the finding of dynamite bombs and "infernal machines" near the homes of Gen. Harrison Grey Otis, proprietor of the Times, and F. J. Zeelandelaar, secretary of the Los Angeles Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association.

Thousands of labor men are in the streets, having come to attend the meeting of the State federation of labor here tomorrow, and with all Los Angeles bitterly divided over the orison question, the situation of turmoil existing today is potent with evil possibilities. That the authorities view the smouldering feeling with considerable apprehension is evidenced by the fact that several hundred Springfield rifles are loaded, and in the lobby of the police station.

Searching For Bodies.
Among the ruins of the Times building hundreds of men are working untiringly in search of the bodies of the men believed to be under the debris. Great crowds are straining the police lines, and it is with difficulty that the guards keep back scores of shrieking, sobbing women and little children, whose husbands and fathers are among the lost.

Mingled expressions of sympathy and indignation are heard among the laboring men who have congregated in the city, but resent the allegation of the Times and its friends that unionism is back of the destruction of the newspaper plant, with its appalling loss of life and the two alleged attempts to dynamite the Otis home, and that of an active anti-union leader.

Horror is expressed on all sides, and labor leaders declared today that no expense will be spared in clearing up the mystery and freeing unionism from the stigma placed upon it by the Times and other enemies as a consequence of the outrages in the last two days.

Believe Experts Responsible.

The authorities are withholding evidence they have collected regarding the demolition of the Times building, and the two dynamite plots discovered in the last twenty-four hours, but intimations made by detectives indicate that the police believe that an organized gang, skilled in the handling of high explosives and possessed of an expert knowledge of the placing of "infernal machines," is responsible for the outrages.

"Third degree" tactics are being used by the police today on a suspect named Michael Egan, and at the termination of the grilling ordeal they expect to be in possession of damaging evidence against the supposed gang of dynamiters. Egan was arrested early today in West Lake Park, and while the police have no direct evidence against him, the suspect thus far has refused to give a satisfactory account of his movements on Friday night and of Saturday.

Threatening letters "were found on Egan when he was arrested, but the nature of the contents the police are keeping a secret, pending further investigation. Egan is evasive in his answers to questions, and will give
